

The Base USA

Anthony Shell April 2024 (updated from October 2020)

In circa 1996, Rinaldo NAZZARO enrolled into The National Defense University (NDU) – a specialist US military training and research establishment, situated within central Washington DC. In particular, he was positioned within the University’s own Institute for National Strategic Studies (INSS). In that capacity, he was involved in the preparation of detailed military assessments of actual or potential conflicts around the World – reports that were to be used by CIA staff and by CIA analysis experts (at Langley) and by operatives (especially operatives deployed ‘in the field’), as essential briefing material.¹

In 1998-1999 Rinaldo NAZZARO was granted a one year internship at the highly prestigious, and politically very influential, Washington-based, National Defense Council Foundation (NDCF).^{2 3} At that time, the NDCF described its work and its purpose in these terms: “NDCF interns have gone on to careers on Capitol Hill, the Central Intelligence Agency, the Defense Intelligence Agency, the Department of Defense, the U.S. Armed Forces, major Defense Contracting / Research and Analysis firms, and several other high profile agencies in the Nation’s capital.”

Clearly the NDCF considered itself to be (and was considered by many others) as an organization that provided young men and women with a career path into the US Military / Intelligences services.

In terms of such military service, there is evidence indicating NAZZARO’s attachment (as a CIA field officer) to US Army units deployed to Afghanistan in late 2001, and to Iraq in early 2003.⁴ It appears that Rinaldo NAZZARO served in Afghanistan from circa 2001-2003 as a senior intelligence officer (with the rank of Captain, under the pseudonym of Cpt. Jason MILLS) and was attached to the 2nd Battalion, 160th Special Operations Aviation Regiment (SOAR), out of Fort Campbell, in Kentucky USA.

In that capacity, NAZZARO’s primary roll appears to have been to monitor, measure and help apply PSYOP activities in terms of a ‘hearts and minds’ propaganda campaign, targeting the civilian population of Afghanistan. This refers specifically to the use of Special Force Group (SFG) members in that process.

It also appears that one of his (and his SFG Unit’s) tasks was to gather historic intelligence on Russia’s war-fighting strategies and capabilities, obtained from both former (veteran) Afghan military personal, and from civilians, in regard to the USSR’s military intervention in Afghanistan 1979-1989.⁵ This will have almost certainly included obtaining information on the efficacy of the hand-held, Stinger ground-to-air missiles, supplied by the US to the US/Saudi-created Al Qaida forces, for use against Russian aircraft.

³ One-year internships at the NDCF ran from mid-January to mid-December (including throughout the summer).

⁴ This is still under investigation and verification – and requires confirmation

In 2003 Rinaldo NARRAZO bought a small, 1-bedroom flat in Arlington, Virginia – just two miles from the Pentagon, and eight miles from CIA Headquarters at Langley.⁶ It was also in 2003 that NAZZARO became temporarily engaged to a young woman employed as a Special Forces psychological operations specialist (PSYOPS) at Fort Bragg, North Carolina.

The context was, therefore, the ongoing war in Afghanistan (the bogus 9/11 connection), the resurgence of the heroin trade out of that country (to, for example and in particular, Europe), the invasion of Iraq (the bogus nuclear and biological/chemical WMD threat), and the preliminaries to the 'regime change' campaign in Libya (the bogus 'yellow cake' nuclear WMD threat).

On the 27th November 2007 NAZZARRO purchased a luxury 1-room apartment (a 'bed-sit, approximately 20 x 20 feet) situated in the Jade NYC Building, in the Flatiron district of Manhattan, New York City.^{7 8}

At this point it is necessary (by way of example) to provide some background into the contemporaneous situation within the USA in regard to the close collaboration between US military intelligence (CIA, DIA), the US educational establishment (especially senior university staff) and the US business sector.

By this time (i.e. circa 2007) the US DOD / CIA had established their 'In-Q-Tel' programme for the purpose of extending collaboration between US military intelligence and US-owned/based IT companies – in the development and application of cyber-warfare technology to include (in particular) an offensive capability in both the military and civilian (public) domain, both overseas and domestically (the USA).⁹

It was, in part, to support that process that the Code CAGE certification process was developed by the US Department of Defense to provide such commercial enterprises (including private business personnel protection, surveillance, intelligence gathering, security and security risk management, companies) with the necessary accreditation to do business with the US military.

In circa 2009-2010 Rinaldo NAZZARO formed Omega Solutions International LLC (OSI). The primary purpose of OSI was to create a private organization of former US military staff experienced in techniques of psychological warfare (propaganda, influence and control techniques), infiltration, insurrection, sabotage, hostage rescue, intelligence gathering, interrogation techniques, and counter-intelligence. The OSI was (presumably) to provide deniable / cutout services to US Government agencies, for clandestine internal (US) and external (overseas, especially Russia-centric) operations. And (presumably) to that end, OSI was granted Code CAGE accreditation, in 2010.

The OSI operated from an HQ in the relatively nearby district of Chelsea (nearby, that is to say, to NAZZARO's apartment in the Flatiron district) in Manhattan, New York City.¹⁰ That New York OSI HQ had the appearance (from the street) of being a modestly sized private (rented) apartment. That was very deceptive. In fact it was of relatively large size – consisting of: a large office space; a large dining/kitchen area; 5 bedrooms and 2 bathrooms. Notably, postal mail, faxes, and voice mail were all picked up from a 'virtual office', approximately 2 miles from that OSI HQ.

This was far from being a low-cost operation – just the rental charges alone, for that HQ, were in excess of $120,000 per year (at today's prices, and on top of that there would have been local taxes, maintenance charges, equipment hire and servicing costs, staff costs, and sundry expenses).

It has to be born in mind that all of this occurred a little over a year after Hilary CLINTON became the US Secretary of State, and of the US State Department becoming involved in, and directing, the attempts at destabilization and 'regime-change' activities in countries such as Belarus and Russia.¹¹

On the 14th July 2012 NAZZARO married a young Russian woman named Lyudmila SERGEYEVA.

Lyudmila SERGEYEVA had grown up in the Komi Republic, in the north-central region of The Russian Federation. After graduating with a teaching degree from the Syktyvkar College in 2001, she spent the next five years studying foreign languages (English and French) at the Komi State University – graduating with a BA Degree in 2006. She subsequently moved to the USA (New York City) where she worked at the Altour Travel Agency, and as a Senior Teller at the Chase Bank in Manhattan. In 2011 Lyudmila SERGEYEVA had obtained an accounting degree at Baruch College also in Manhattan. Undoubtedly such qualifications would have been very useful in regard to her work as (effectively) the business manager of the OSI business operations.

On the 11th July 2014 – two years after becoming married – Rinaldo NAZZARO sold his luxury apartment in Manhattan, New York City.¹² In hindsight this can be seen as part of the NAZZARO family's preparations (of Rinaldo, Lyudmilla and their child/children) for their move to Washington DC. And just a week later, on the 19th July 2014, the NAZZARO's made an offer for an apartment in the Georgetown district of Washington.^{13 14} This was accepted, subject to some particular contractual agreements.

On the 16th October 2014 NAZZARO's OSI was (re) registered as an incorporated business in Washington DC.¹⁵ The two Washington-based OSI 'virtual offices' were both in the centre of Washington DC.¹⁶ On the 2nd November 2014 the rental agreement on the OSI office in New York was allowed to run out.¹⁷

The primary 'virtual office' was in an office block on N Street (with its conference suits, and rented office space). It was just a couple of hundred yards from both the Washington HQ office of The Atlantic Council (accessible via a secure back-alley access route) at the highly prestigious 1030 Fifteenth Building (top 3 floors, covering some 47,000 square feet of floor space), and the Washington HQ office of The Jamestown Foundation at 1111 16th NW (suite #320, third floor).¹⁸ The Jamestown Foundation office was on the third floor of an office block, immediately overlooking the Russian Ambassador's official residence.

The other 'virtual offices' used by Rinaldo NAZZARO (OSI) was in G Street NW – and was just 50 yards from both the Washington HQ office of the FBI Intelligence Analysts Association Inc. on F Street NW (and also accessible via a secure back-alley access route).

At almost the exact same time that NAZZARO was arranging his move to Washington (i.e. in early December 2014) an article was published in the Washington-based Georgetown (University) Security Studies Review (GSSR) titled 'Using Hate Sites to Counter White Separatist Terrorism in the US'.¹⁹

Given the long history of FBI involvement in the creation and the activities of US neo-Nazi white separatist movements (including as part of the notorious FBI entrapment operations) it is therefore very disturbing to see (such as is illustrated in that GSSR article) — the conflation of such US-based movements white neo-Nazi movements, and the Palestinians' fight against the Zionists' 'Israel Project'. [see attached scan]

The author of that GSSR article, Joshua FORGET, included (in that article) the following: "In the wake of President Obama's immigration decision, the feasibility of a white separatist terrorist attack being carried out on US soil may increase. This will require a refocusing of the FBI, DHS, and law enforcement on the white separatist terror threat. Using the robust white separatist Internet presence to collect and analyze intelligence on a largely localized movement is a vital component in the counterterrorism effort."

Notably, Joshua FORGET went on to say: "First, hate websites are a gold mine of open source intelligence. Even as an unregistered user, one can gather information on everything from ideological trends to the dates and locations of white power gatherings. A registered user can gain even further access to password-protected discussions by establishing trust with the more serious users, like this man did. Second, the forums provide a gateway for special agents and police officers to infiltrate white separatist organizations by establishing and maintaining a credible persona online."

However the appearance of that particular article, at that particular time, is seen to be of special relevance in regard to the subject matter of this report – not least in the advancement of the apparent advocacy for the use of the infiltration of 'target' Internet social forums to gather information (and potentially to influence) the participants in such forums. Needless to say, it is a relatively small step to go from such activities to that of creating extremist Internet social forums, for the purpose of the entrapment of otherwise lawfullybehaving individuals into criminality (a procedure not unknown to the FBI) – and also of potentially helping to create extremist (i.e. racist, supremacist) social subgroups that will have not have otherwise existed.

¹⁷ It is not known whether if the OSI operation (in New York City) continued after Rinaldo NAZZARO (and family) relocated to Washington. Given the continued use of the 'virtual office', the suspicion is that that was, indeed, the case – albeit from a different location. Most certainly interest in Russian affairs would have continued unabated.

¹⁸ There was also a second, nearby, office of The Jamestown Foundation, at 1310 L St. NW (suite #810)

¹⁹ 'Using Hate Sites to Counter White Separatist Terrorism in the US', by Joshua Forget, Georgetown Security Studies Research (GSSR), Georgetown University, 7th December 2014.

The article was therefore most strange for a number of reasons, including: (1) the incongruent nature of the subject matter, compared to other articles within the GSSR research output; (2) that the reference to “this man” (an ‘infiltrator’ of on-line forums) appears to have been to Allen WEINER, the founder and director / editor of the highly-influential Daily Dot (The Kernel) on-line magazine, and (3) the oddly abbreviated (and the content) of the biography for that particular GSSR researcher (Joshua FORGET).²⁰

Joshua FORGET (notably a fluent Russian speaker) appears to have served an Internship at The Chertoff Group (in central Washington DC), from August 2015 to June 2016 (10 months). And he also appears to have subsequently worked as an analyst at M Powered Strategies, (also in central Washington DC), from July 2016 to December 2016 (5 months).^{21 22} It is noted The Chertoff Group was founded by former head of the US Department of Homeland Security (DHS), Michael CHERTOFF whilst M Powered Strategies initially had a ‘teaming partnership’ with Booz Allen Hamilton (widely seen as a surrogate CIA organization) and has had links to the controversial White Helmets group in Syria.

Research also indicates that FORGET was directly connected to major US Government agencies in the Washington DC area, such as the National Foreign Affairs Training Center (NFATC) and the Foreign Service Institute (FSI) – both based in Langley, Virginia.²³

On the 12th December 2014, Rinaldo NAZZARO completed the purchase (and presumably moved into) a more commodious (2-bedroom) luxury apartment in the ‘swanky’ Georgetown district of Washington – an apartment situated just one quarter-mile from Georgetown University.²⁴ It is therefore assumed that this was an intended as a ‘long term’ career move, and hence the purchase of the NAZZARO’s first family home (for Rinaldo NAZZARO, his wife, and their young children). This rather begs the question – where was he actually working, what work was he doing, and who were his employees / employers / clients?^{25 26}

Just two weeks after the completion of that transaction, it appears that steps were taken to remove Rinaldo NAZZARO’s name as the registered owner of that Georgetown apartment, by means of a bogus resale transaction – which, presumably, was done by Rinaldo NAZZARO himself.

²⁵ The OSI webpage continued to use the Manhattan ‘virtual office’ phone number as the contact point (i.e. for voicemail, text and fax ‘pick-ups’).

The context for the NAZZARO's move (to Washington DC) is therefore seen as especially crucial. This therefore occurred just 10 months after the US State Department inspired Euro-Maidan coupe in Ukraine in February 2014, and 9 months after the annexation of Crimea by Russia (in March 2014) – and the subsequent civil war in Ukraine with the increasing (and potentially confrontational) involvement of both US and of Russian Special Forces.²⁷

Even immediately after Russia annexed Crimea, commentators noted the highly dangerous strategy of that Washington political / military / industrial / academia / media cabal.²⁸ Just five months after Russia annexed Crimea, journalist Christopher Booker noted: *“For months the West has been demonising President Putin, with figures such as the Prince of Wales and Hillary Clinton comparing him with Hitler, oblivious to the fact that what set this crisis in motion were those recklessly provocative moves to absorb Ukraine into the EU. ... There was never any way that this drive to suck the original cradle of Russian identity into the Brussels empire was not going to provoke Moscow to react – not least due to the prospect that its only warm-water ports, in Crimea, might soon be taken over by Nato.”*²⁹

Those “provocative moves”, originating in Washington DC, therefore have to be seen in a historical context. The conceit behind the Washington anti-Russia ‘Crimea strategy’ was obvious to any politically-aware person: “Putin, whatever his failings, is not an ideologue. Although passionate in his views and loud in his condemnation of the failings of other states, he remains rational and pragmatic. He was well aware that the US lured the Soviet Union into the quagmire, precipitating its collapse. The architect of that strategy was Zbigniew BRZEZINSKI, who even before the Soviet invasion of December 1979 had talked President CARTER into arming the mujahideen.”

Analysis shows that a major part of the strategic response of the US Government (Obama / Biden / Clinton) included giving assistance to the creation (circa 2013-2014) of neo-Nazi militia elements within the Ukrainian National Guard (i.e. the AZOV Battalion and its political recruitment arm The Misanthropic Division). This was to help exacerbate conflict between the ethnic Russians and ethnic Ukrainians in eastern Ukraine, and hence to provoke a major military intervention from Russia into that particular region.

In April 2015 some 300 US ‘trainers’ (i.e. Special Forces) were moved into the city of Lviv, in the far west region of Ukraine, to train Ukrainian National Guard troops for deployment to the Donbas region.³⁰

The extraordinarily close proximity of Rinaldo NAZZARO's new family home to Georgetown University is seen as especially significant – given that that university is home to the highly influential Georgetown University Center for Security Studies (CSS), under the leadership of the much renowned (and much lauded) Professor Bruce HOFFMAN. Dr. HOFFMAN previously worked for The RAND Corporation (a company closely connected to the CIA), for The Council of Foreign Relations (CFR), the Washington-

based Jamestown Foundation, and (most notably, in the context of this report) as a Board Advisor to the Washington-based FBI Intelligence Analysts Association Inc. (see previously, regarding NAZZARO's 'virtual office').³¹

The Jamestown Foundation was founded in Washington DC in 1984. Both the Central Intelligence Agency (CIA) and US State Department gave official US Government backing to its creation. The primary purpose of that organization was (at that time) to serve as an intelligence gathering and propaganda asset for NATO and the USA – with the primary target being the (then) Soviet Union and Warsaw Pact countries. After the fall of the Communist Bloc (1991) the role of the Jamestown Foundation significantly changed. Whilst still concentrating on the countries of Eastern Europe/Eurasia, the emphasis became the use of its intelligence gathering and propaganda abilities to aid the expansion of NATO into that region.³²

At the end of January 2018 NAZZARO sold the Washington apartment (or the apartment was sold on his behalf) – the apartment having been put on the market 3 months earlier, on the 16th October 2017.³³

In early April 2018 a TRR podcast video was released onto social media (Bitchute). That video contained a 1 hour 45 minute interview of a young American, named as 'Norman Spear', in which he espoused and promoted the notions of a far-right 'leaderless resistance' being used to bring down the US Government. The location of that interview could be easily identified as a public park in St. Petersburg, Russia. And anyone who knew Rinaldo NAZZARO (i.e. his many security/intelligence contacts in Washington DC) would know that he was that individual using the pseudonym 'Norman Spear'. Despite this, the public identification of 'Norman Spear' and Rinaldo NAZZARO being one and the same person was not made until early 2020.

The lead interviewer of Rinaldo NAZZARO, in that video, has been identified as an advocate for the Misanthropic Division – a group active in Europe, with the particular purpose of recruiting young men into the AZOV Battalion. The Misanthropic Division was founded by a Belarussian citizen, Dmitry PAVLOV in 2013. It is reported to have played a major part in the 'regime change' Euromaiden riots in 2014, and of having the purpose of promoting chaos within the Russian Federation (of ethno-states) by: "disparagement of Caucasian and Asian national (ethnic) groups, incitement of hatred and enmity to Jews, Negroid races, Muslims".³⁴ The Misanthropic Division and AZOV Battalion have both been banned in Russia.³⁵

³² Notably, attendees at a highly significant, NATO-organized conference in Riga (Latvia) in 2006 reportedly included Mr. Vladimir SOCOR – a senior fellow of TJF. The obvious purpose of the conference was to plan for the future destabilization of states bordering Russia (i.e. the CIS members, and especially the key member, Belarus) and for a further expansion of the NATO alliance (and, in particular, to incorporate both the Ukraine and Georgia into NATO). Source: Michel Chossudovsky, Global Research, November 26, 2006 www.globalresearch.ca/index.php?context=viewArticle&code=CHO20061126&articleId=3975

³³ Reports were to appear mainstream media (some two years later, in early 2020) claiming either: (1) that Rinaldo NAZZARO had moved to New Jersey, and that his wife had gone to Russia; or (2) that the whole family (Rinaldo, his wife, and their children) had moved to Russia.

³⁴ 'Leaders and members of units of Misanthropic Division extremist organization banned in Russia jailed', en.sledcom.ru, 20th June 2017

³⁵ 'Russia Launches Criminal Case Against Belarussian Nationalist', The Moscow Times, 12th July 2016

This, of course, also begs the question: why would Rinaldo NAZZARO risk arrest (and imprisonment) by agreeing to be interviewed by a person connected to the Misanthropic Division – a group already banned by the Russian authorities? The most rational answer (to that particular question) would seem to be that NAZZARO was, in fact, working with the Russian security and anti-terrorism police, for the purpose of closing down those US-inspired groups (such as the Misanthropic Division and AZOV) then operating within the Russian Federation, Belarus, and Ukraine.

In June 2019 NAZZARO was invited by the Russian Government to a major security conference / exhibition in Moscow that dealt with various means to protect civic utilities and amenities, and businesses, from both physical and cyber attacks by extremist individuals and groups (i.e. terrorists)..

In the August 2019 edition of the Georgetown Security Studies Review a short article, by Joseph STABILE, titled ‘Pursuit of an Ethnostate: Political Culture and Violence in the Pacific Northwest’, was published.³⁶ Again, the timing and subject matter of a GSSR article appears to be strangely opportune. Most oddly, despite the subject matter, no mention was made, whatsoever, of THE BASE, or of Norman SPEAR / Roman Wolf – despite that organization (and that individual) being widely seen as being at the heart of that particular socio-political phenomena, at that particular time (from late 2018 onwards).

Therefore we required to accept that over the two-year period, from November 2018 to early 2020 Norman Spear, was never recognized as being Rinaldo NAZZARO – and especially not by anyone at The Center for Security Services (CSS) at Georgetown University, despite the particular interest the CSS had in the supposed emergence of a ‘white supremacist’, anti-Semitic, racist, neo-Nazi terrorist sub-culture within the USA. Nor, we are required to believe, was he ever recognized by any of the staff of ancillary US Government intelligence / surveillance / influence groups, active within the WH area of Washington.

In February 2020 the Georgetown Security Studies Review published an article titled ‘The Far-Right and Domestic Terrorism: Legislation’s Day in the Sun?’³⁷ Despite giving a detailed report on the activities of the far-right THE BASE, over the previous two years, the GSSR managed to do so without ever mentioning Rinaldo NAZZARRO – the founder of THE BASE. And this non-recognition was despite Rinaldo NAZZARO having been a recent resident of Georgetown, and having lived in the immediate vicinity of the University (i.e. just a leisurely 10 minute stroll) for some 3 years.

On the 22 March 2020 the Coalition For A safer Web (CSW) published a number of reports in which Rinaldo NAZZAROW was very specifically mentioned. This included this, from the CSW: “Ten days ago, CSW issued a press release ... warning that the U.S. citizen Rinaldo Nazzaro – the neo-Nazi leader of the most violent and large [sic. largest] group known as The Base – is using his [sic. safe] haven in St. Petersburg, Russia with the full knowledge and consent of the Kremlin. It is no surprise that Nazzaro is welcome in St. Petersburg – Vladimir Putin’s hometown and a hotbed of Russian white nationalism whose city leaders hosted American neo-Nazis in recent years.”³⁸ Despite CWS admitting it's evidence amounted to only selected mainstream media opinion pieces, it went on to assert: “The fact that the Russian government is knowingly harboring Rinaldo Nazzaro – the purported leader of the virulent neo-Nazi group ‘The Base’ – is Exhibit A. CSW has called on Congress to impose more economic sanctions on Russia until Nazzaro is expelled from St. Petersburg.”

Later in 2020, the CSW bragged of undertaking “ground-breaking” initiatives, including: “RUSSIA & ‘THE BASE’: Uncovered the role which the Russian Government is playing to support the operations from St. Petersburg of Rinaldo Nazarro – the purported leader of the most violent neo-Nazi terrorist group known as ‘The Base’.” Actually, CSW ‘uncovered’ nothing of the sort.^{39 40}

So, what can be concluded?

It would be no exaggeration to say that, over a period of some 20 years, Ricardo NAZZARO would have been very much ‘in the belly of the beast’ (the Washington DC political / military / industrial establishment). He had obviously worked closely with CIA / DIA military intelligence, and to have served (on attachment) to US Special Forces in both Afghanistan and Iraq, he was closely connected to the application of Army Psychological Operations ‘in the field’, and he had developed a business whose purpose (in part, at least) was to provide the US military and intelligence services with particular forms of cyber warfare and counter-warfare capabilities, surveillance and counter-surveillance techniques, and data acquisition and (network) analysis.

In his approximate 20-year career in US military intelligence / Special Forces / the CIA / law enforcement / and accredited US defense sub-contractor, Rinaldo NAZZARO will have gained considerable inside knowledge of Washington DC based inter-agency infrastructures, policy (politics), strategies, programmes, specific operations, operational methods and tactics, technical capabilities (especially), and the identity of staff and subcontractors, connected to such matters. The obvious question has to be why (unlike, for example, Edward Snowden) did Rinaldo NAZZARO never place any of that information into the public domain, given his purported conversion (and commitment) to an anti-government, white separatist cause? Why did he never exploit that knowledge, to ‘aid the cause’?

It is also beyond doubt that NAZZARO will have been very familiar with the work (and political inclinations) of such organizations as: Georgetown Center of Security Studies (GU / CSS); The FBI – IAA; The Jamestown Foundation; and The Atlantic Council. Indeed, it is entirely possible – given his ‘track record’ in working with US Special Forces, the US intelligence services (CIA and DHS), and his work in developing and running a cyber network design and analysis business – that he would have had direct contact with those organizations and employees over the period late 2013 to late 2017.

So, why did NAZZARO flee to Russia in early 2018?

An important clue may be found in the knowledge that Rinaldo NAZZARO undoubtedly possessed of some of the more reprehensible activities being carried out by academia and private institutions, in collaboration with powerful US Government agencies, to foment conflict within Russia and Central Asia.

Having a young Russian wife is also very likely to influenced NAZZARO's thinking, in this regard.

From the information retrieved in the course of some 3 years of research – and as summarized (in part) within this report – it is surmised that Rinaldo NAZZARO may well have created and operated THE BASE as a far-right 'accelerationist' group, targeting the USA – with NAZZARO's intention of 'turning the tables ' on the USA Government, in a retaliatory response to the many years that the US Government had been exploiting and supporting these self-same type of fabricated neo-Nazi, racial and religious separatist movements within the Russian Federation (with the US Government's intention of causing massive instability and the eventual break-up of that Federation).
